INTERLACHEN

preface

Only through many long laborious months of effort on the parts of the entire INTERLACHEN staff is this, your 1951 edition of the Florida Southern year-book, off the presses.

If it were not for the complete cooperation of the staff, the administration, and all of those lesser individuals, the Frank Lloyd Wright issue would not have been possible.

To The Students of Florida Southern:

When Dr. Spivey—the good genius of Florida Southern College—flew up to Taliesin about thirteen years ago this spring—he came with the avowed purpose of giving the United States at least one example of a college wherein modern life was to have the advantages of modern science and art in actual building construction. He told me he wanted me as much for my philosophy as for my architecture. I assured him they were inseparable.

As ever since, these, your college buildings, have been in continuous state of growth. Their outdoor garden character is an expression of Florida at its best. Study these buildings, because unless you do know something about the kind of building we call Organic Architecture you can't really know very much about anything else worth knowing. Knowing what is good or bad about a building is knowing about the life you live and how you live it if not why. So try to understand why buildings are the way they are. There is always some reason in and behind every front you see or else there is none. If there is none, then what you see is bad. To see all there is to see takes much study and much cultivation.

Yes. But if you ask why whenever you see what you like or like what you see, you will start along the path of comprehension. That will be good because there can be no great life for any people without integral culture.

Knowledge of the why in Architecture is the true basis of a culture just now as it has ever been.

All we best know about the great civilizations that have died is what we learn from their Architecture. If our civilization were destroyed now what would civilizations to come think of us as a people were they to someday look back upon what we have done and are so busy doing. What would they see, do you think.

So throughout these buildings in which you study and work now, try to understand what it is all about—what it in particular means to you. What it means today and tomorrow is important because buildings last a long time. So here you will see something of your own today that is tomorrow. And maybe the day after that.

Here at least at Florida Southern is an education saga along the lines of an indigenous American Architecture and that means a culture of our own.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO THE INTERLACHEN:

This is my twenty-sixth year to write a little message for our INTERLACHEN. From year to year, I find myself thinking more and more about the men and women who have graduated from the college during my long stay. No matter where I go, I always meet some former students, who manifest a great appreciation for what the college did for them. All of this brings me great reward and deep satisfaction.

After the seniors of this class go out to take up their tasks, they will join thousands of others who have preceded them. Each one of them will go with my blessings and prayers.

To the students who are to return next year, I want to wish a good summer and a pleasant experience in whatever you plan to do. All our lives are in a fluid state and none of us know what is ahead of us from day to day..However, I am convinced that out of all of this will come a better day for the college and a better day for all mankind.

Very sincerely yours,

grant l. miller, III

This year's "honor walk" student has a life story that would do justice to any novel.

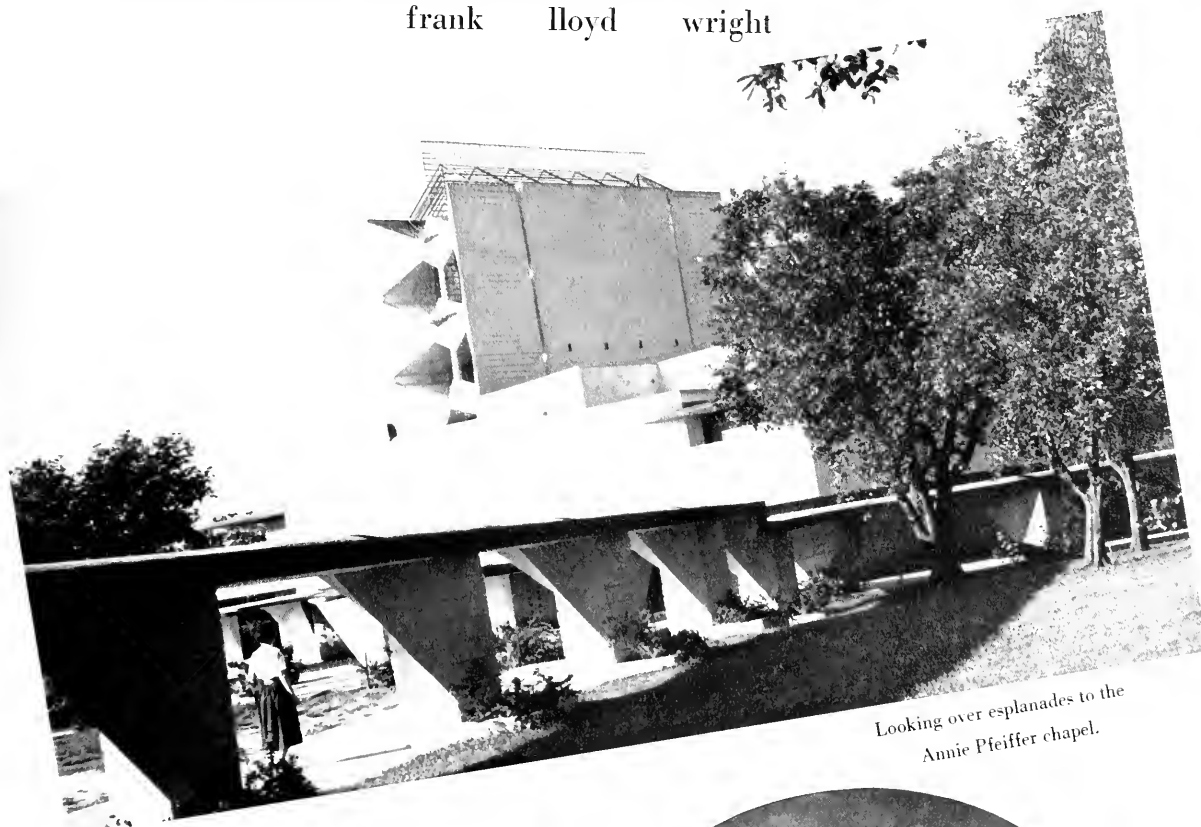

He is Grant L. Miller, III, who has maintained a phenomenal 2.94 average for his whole college program, this after being told that he was not college material.

Grant quit high school at the age of 15 and joined the Navy and was later discharged because of his age. He attended an engine school for two years and then enlisted in the Air Force. While serving in Germany, he met the girl whom he was later to marry.

Upon his final discharge, he returned to his native Lakeland and commenced at Southern. The rest is scholastic history.

lambda chi alpha

Lambda Chi Alpha was founded in 1909 as a national fraternity. Since the founding of the original chapter at Boston University the fraternity has risen to a membership of 46,500 men in 137 chapters. It also maintains 91 alumni associations.

The Epsilon Chi chapter is the oldest national fraternity on the Florida Southern campus and as such has established itself as a pioneer in the various stages of fraternal development.

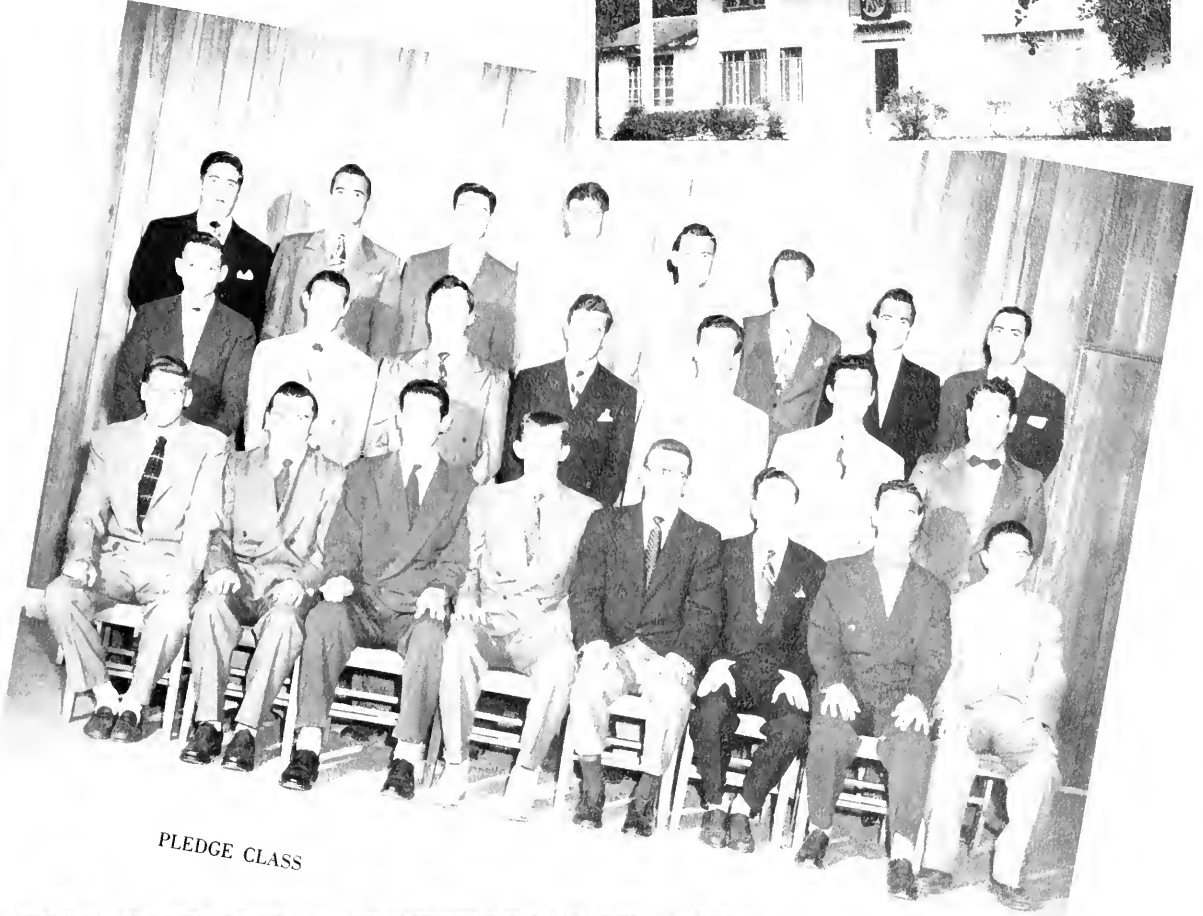

Highlighting the accomplishments of the past year was the acquisition of their Lodge, pictured at the top right of page 157. They have the honor of being the first fraternity on the campus to own and operate their own chapter house.

Phi Sigma Kappa was founded in 1873 at the University of Massachusetts and is a charter member of the national Inter-Fraternity Council.

Today there are over 60 chapters with about 22,000 members. The local chapter was designated Omega Triton after being initiated from the local fraternity, Pi Alpha, on April 1, 1950.

Their principles compare with Jeffersonian democracy in content with the outstanding one being that membership is open to any man regardless of race, religion or financial status.

The fraternities famed plan of finance is based on alumni control and supervision, budgetary operation, sliding scale of assessments, is one of great value to the collegiate chapter. This plan has been known as the Purdue plan.

On February 1, 1947, the Tau Rho chapter of the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity was established on the Florida Southern campus. TEP was the third national fraternity and the first to be founded on the principles of non-sectarianism.

Since that initial entry on the FSCene, TEP has excelled in most of its undertakings.

For the past two years its athletic teams have won the Intramural high point trophies, and the TEP-HOP, the largest all-campus dance is always one of the year's most brilliant events. Both of these are indications of the fraternity's spirit and determination.

Like many of the larger fraternities on the campus the Beta Tau chapter is young (having been organized in 1943) and active. Their social calendar contains, for one thing, the Cherry and Red Ball, which, incidentally, uses the fraternity colors for its title.

However, their main purpose is to be a vital aid in the development of the character and capacity of their members instead of stressing merely the social functions.

Officers for the year were: President, Bob Gannett; Vice President, Jim Brugmann; Secretary, Dick Haessler; Treasurer, Bill Lopin.

One of the things that makes Southern a great college is the large number of students here who are of foreign birth and who bring European, Asiatic, and Latin American cultures to the school. We feel very fortunate in being able to associate with these people and glean from them some small part of their rich heritages, customs, and languages. In fact the International Club itself is devoted to furthering this relationship on both the social and intellectual planes.

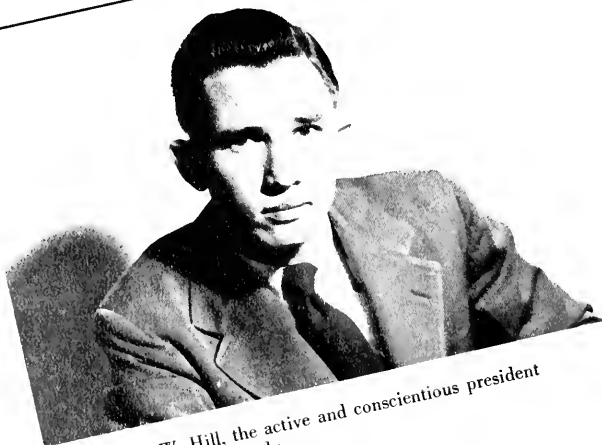

On this page can be seen the faces of perhaps the most representative and cosmopolitan group of people outside the U.N. The International Club really proves and practices that mutual understanding between the United States and other countries can exist.

Many of the school children of the years following 1952 are in for a special treat in the form of their instructors. This is due to a great extent to the groups pictured on these two pages—the Future Teachers of America, the Kappa Delta Pi National Education Fraternity and the Variety Players, a group used for recruiting of prospective teachers.

In fulfilling the aims of these three organizations the members receive a more liberal and practical education and in doing this become valuable and indispensable parts of our great school system.

The highest honor obtainable by a man on Florida Southern's campus is membership in the Omicron Delta Kappa. Only persons of high character and high scholastic standing are eligible for these positions.

The club was first organized in 1949 by choosing members who possessed the above mentioned qualities and who took an active part in one of the major campus pursuits—religion, athletics, speech, radio, drama, art, music, or social life.

Through co-operative activity the club hopes to accomplish projects of benefit to the college and the student body.

As testimonial to this fact there was the meeting of the Florida division of the "American Academy of Science" sponsored by the club and held here last fall.

Their other activities are concerned with the engaging of lecturers for their meetings and practical investigations through visiting local industrial plants.

The Vagabonds, under the sponsorship of Miss Gail Potter, is a club organized for those students who are interested in drama. Any member of the student body has the opportunity of becoming a Vagabond if he wishes to participate in acting, stage design, lighting, make-up, etc.

Every year the club presents plays of Broadway standard and also workshop productions. The Little Theater on the campus serves as a workshop. Here experimental plays are produced and directed by students.

Under the leadership of our club officers, Diane Allman, Jerry Kleiger, Robert Hamilton and William Covell the 'Vags have completed a very successful year on Florida Southern's campus. This year they successfully started what they hope to continue as the first all campus social function, the Vag Drag. A hush settles over the crowd, the house lights dim. Professor Griffiths ascends the podium, raises his baton, and another concert of the Florida Southern College Orchestra begins. This scene is enacted many times each year in many different parts of the state to a multitude of music lovers and casual concert-goers.

Southern is proud to have an orchestra of symphonic size, but it doesn't restrict membership to music majors alone. Many townsfolk, high school musicians, and interested students take an active part in each concert. It is very fitting that a group of this caliber can contribute to the high cultural standards set and maintained on this campus.

The janitor in Edge Hall is probably one of the school's authorities on choral music, for it is his good fortune to be entertained three hours a week by rehearsal of the sixty voice Florida Southern College Chorus. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon his work brings him near to every type of singing from the great melodies of Bach to the satiric verse of Gilbert-and-Sullivan and the stirring old hymns and anthems of the Church.

The chorus, under Professor Pfeffley, is one of the outstanding attractions of the college—both to those who participate and to those who enjoy good music.

Not only is their singing of excellent calibre but their robes are a bright red—both of which combine to present quite a spectacular production at each concert.

moc basketball summary

The 1950-51 edition of Southern's basketball squad has a record of eight wins and 12 losses, with one more game to be played against their rivals, the University of Tampa. The record is not comparable to last year's team, since they finished with 16 wins and 11 losses including the three straight wins in gaining the Dixie Conference Championship. In spite of their record of games won the F.S.C. cagemen have come through the season with more spirit and determination than any previous team in Southern's history. It was by this fighting spirit and the strength that comes through united effort that the Mocs were able to fight to within four points of defeating a highly subsidized team, Miami U., and upset the University of Florida, a team favored to beat Southern by at least 12 points. The team lacked experience this year, but the major portion of this was overcome by the aggressive manner displayed by the entire squad.

The year did uncover some bright spots, notable among them being the excellent floor play of Gene Foutz and the scoring power of Fred Lapper. To date, the squad is building toward the successful culmination of a mediocre season by retaining the Dixie Conference Championship and the chances are good if they can achieve the inspirational peak of the second Florida U. encounter.

BABY MOCS

Southern's Junior Varsity squad at this time has a record of nine wins and only one loss, playing the best independent and junior college teams in this section. The team is fast and well drilled in the fundamentals of the game and should help build the nucleus of next year's Varsity.

Kneeling: Coach Lease, Berg, Zuber, Senger, Hackman.

Volleyball, Southern's newest varsity sport, has completed its second season of inter-collegiate activity and the sport is gaining in popularity throughout the South. The members of the team were picked from various intramural squads that participated in the early season play-offs. Coach Luce has built the team into a well-knit group whose interest in the sport has risen to the heights of competitive spirit.

Coxswain Paul Healy puts the varsity through a hard practice on Lake Hollingsworth.

Shown on this page are last year's crew as they were preparing for the Dad Vail regatta, which is the largest of its kind held for small schools and is comparable to the Poughkeepsie regatta in size. The squad finished in a tie for fifth place and is aiming for a win this year, in this, their second year, in the event.

Varsity baseball, this year, is under the direction of Coach Lease, with practice just getting underway as this book went to press.

It is too early to tell what the season will hold for the squad, but all indications point to Southern's most successful season in many years and the possible acquisition of the Dixie conference championship.

In addition, Lease is looking for help from returning lettermen and seasoned veterans to bring the Mocs their first state title by defeating such teams as Rollins, Miami, and Florida who have been holding forth as the powers in state inter-collegiate baseball.

Sitting: Cade, Gaylord, and Mellis.

Kneeling: Lease, Steenson, DeFonso, P. Neil, Collins, Stevens, Billstrand, Senger, Giordane, McKenna and Wilcox.

Standing: Kreutzer, Stone, Terry, Solph, Carey, Mosco, O'Brien, Smeltzly, Decker, Watson and Gillet.

The Flying Mocs were still in training early in March in preparation for the coming spring sport. The lack of proper training facilities has failed to hamper the development of Coach Holcombe's trackmen and they are prepared to make a good showing for the college in dual meets and the Dixie conference championship tourney.

The men's intramural board is the strongest student government board on campus, formulating and ruling all sports throughout the year. The board is composed of one representative from each recognized men's group on the campus which participates in any sport. The board has its own president and Coach Sam Luce is faculty advisor, assisting only in matters which call for his wealth of experience in policy and organization.

VOLLEYBALL	Tau Epsilon Phi
BASKETBALL	Tau Epsilon Phi

The first sport of the fall season drew many participants and spectators to watch SPE down Pike in a close match.

Pictured on this page are two major winners in Southern's expanded sports program for intramural competition.

Tau Epsilon Phi, since its founding, has always been a major threat in all phases of intramural sports and this year regained the basketball trophy which they lost to Lambda Chi Alpha last year. The squad won their league title and went on to defeat Tau Kappa Epsilon by ten points in the playoffs. Coached by Bud Stone, varsity basketball forward, the team showed plenty of fight and ability to win one of the most sought after titles in the sports program.

The women's athletic department, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Roller, has been concerned with the development of poise and grace in the Co-eds, rather than too high a devotion to advancement of competitive spirit, although this phase has not been overlooked in the final analysis of the typical college girl.

AN OPEN LETTER TO YOU:

I would like to take this opportunity to wholeheartedly thank Mr. Harold Sanborn for his untiring and ceaseless efforts in behalf of the 1951 INTERLACHEN.

If it were not for his splendid cooperation, it would not have been possible to have this book to you—the student—at this time.

Mr. Sanborn did a magnificent job in the face of sickness and the work that the Public Relations office demanded of him.

Sincerely,
MORTON TATAR
